RECENTLY compiled figures indicate that traffic in Tel Aviv is about ten times heavier than in Berlin. This is not surprising because Tel Aviv, who now holds the leading city while the other is very old and has been on the decline for several years. Once Rome was a city of 5 million inhabitants, but when the seat of empire moved to Constantinople, Rome shrank to the size of a village and grass grew in its streets.

HITLER STANDS TOWARD JEWS IS SAME-SEGER

Former Reichstag Member Says Nazi's Role for World Domination

Extremes predominate over the future of the Jews in Germany was an expression of Dr. Max Schachter, former Socialist member of the German Reichstag, who spoke here this week. The former member of a convention about a week after he had been impressed by Dr. Seiger, declared that Hitler still believes implicitly in the familiar "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," a forged document long ago distributed throughout the world, which was purported to be a plan for the annihilation of the world Jewish community.

"Hitler was born and raised in the most anti-Semitic district in Europe," Seiger went on to say. He is, attitude the Jews, are recognize anti-Semitism today, he declared as "the most widespread and terrible" of the period before the advent of the Nazis.

Seiger asserted that Hitler and his government are brutally preparing for a war which will establish "Aryan" dominance at the world's expense.

The Jewish Problem

The past month or so has brought out a plethora of books on Jewish questions, which is, in itself, desirable if any other period ever resulted in as rich a literature as this. A quite obvious conclusion is that Hitlerism and its consequent world manifestation of anti-Semitism has focused attention on Jews and the Jewish problem.

To mention just a few books, Ague (German), the Library choice of the Book of the Month Club; Goebbels’s “Die Juden” (Deutschland für Deutschland); B. N. Behren’s “Purim: Tales From Heaven” (Random House); Leo Lanning’s “Land of Promise” (Macmillan); A. History of National Socialism (Knoepp) by Konrad Halde; Vincent Starrett’s “A Masonic Hero” (Literary Guild); Joseph Roth’s “Anti-Christ” (Hale); “Seven Days in the Wandering Jew” by Edmond Pieg (R. B. Dutton); and “Gill is Sheep” by Harry Hott (Selma A. B注z).

There are other books, particularly interesting to Jews by reason of their Jewish urbane, in this group, which are: “A Man Called Cervantes” (Viking Press); the March charts of the Book of the Month Club; “Moosor Covered” (Knopf) by Eugene Lyons; Leonard Frankfurter’s “Martin the Jew in India and Seven Other Tales” (Viking); and Elia P. Parker’s “Come and Get It” (Dodd, Mead).\n
All Agree on Poetic Prose

Much has already been written about Nathan’s masterful study of the Jews “The Read of Man is Just” which has been through Europe and Asia to the Gold Coast, the last haven of a martined race. It has been the subject of a number of symposiums and many literary reviews. It has been the subject of a number of symposiums and many literary reviews. It has been the subject of a number of symposiums and many literary reviews.

A number of writers have felt that Nathan has been too far too close in his treatment of a subject with which we are all familiar. With this group, I disagree. The beauty of his work, the style, is in the lack of plot, the pre-occupation with character. Like, for example, the “Candide” of Voltaire, this book cannot fail to be charged with the solution of the Jewish problem.

Palestine: Land of Modern Miracles

Helping Establish a Jewish Homeland

(The following is the second in a series of exclusive articles dealing with the growth of Jewish Palestine. As the author, a prominent Pittsburgh attorney, is one of the best authorities on the subject, we publish it here.—The EDITOR.)

By Maurice L. Avner

ABSTRACT of its immediate issue is the Jewish population of Palestine. During the last few years, you may have heard of the greater medal of increased population would have been if, instead of removing this which make it difficult to enter, there were no restrictions of entry whatever. It may be part of the miracle that Britain saw it as wise and protective measure to keep entry into Palestine restricted just for the sake of the miracle that the restrictions are not fixed, strict, and immobile.

There are three ways of entering Palestine lawfully. The easiest way is the "on time" way. This is not limited as to numbers in the matter of entry. Their only limit is as to length of time which they are permitted to stay. It is possible for inexperienced to remain in constant residence, conditioned on their financial standing and their willingness to apply for citizenship. There is a way of entry called "off the road" way. To obtain a permit you must bring with you 1,600 Palestine pounds, conditional of 3,000. Those who enter by this method are called the "Charity" class. This group is now allowed to enter the material or economic grounds of the land. The thousands pounds are necessary to cover the expenses. The land brings much more than the midpoint. This group enter into business, build houses, buy gardens and houses and generally become producers and consumers. It follows, therefore, that the restriction on this class is not unreasonable or made impossible.

Immigrants Restricted

In the third group, the immigrant group, against which the restriction is strictly enforced and which affords very easily, very materially and very effectively, the more rapid increase of the Jewish population of Palestine. By immigrants, we mean those who demand no reflection upon their desirability as immigrants. As a matter of fact, this group is the most essential of the most important group in the rebuilding of Palestine. They are laborers and mechanics, men and women, mostly young people, who are reality sure and hope for an opportunity to offer their skills, their energy and their very life to help build up the land of their ancestors. They are the artisans, the group. Industry in Palestine years for these and anticipate its success to the bitter end. It will not keep for himself but offered to his people. The financial co- operation of the Palestine Economic Corporation (about that factor in Palestine development later) Power, houses were built, machinery installed, the water reservoirs, pools and wires installed and in and behold another miracle happened in Modern Palestine. This miracle is never again have looked above that in 194, based on the first 2 months of consumption, the total consumption of electricity for all purpose in 1944, would approximate 3,100,000 kw. -att. for 1944.

Public Finances

Another index of Palestine prosperity is reflected in the annual surplus that is accumulating in the treasury of the Palestinian administration, which is reflected in the balance sheet over the past twelve months. The surplus produced in 1934, was $10,421,085, of which $2,150,000 is represented the surplus increased during the last two months of 1935. From a Public Agency claim it as New Palestine, December 31, 1935, a surplus over the government report for the six months from April, 1934, to October, 1934, (the fiscal year is March 31) the surplus should close to $10,000,000 in the above mentioned December 31, surplus. The 1935 surplus is close to the marked increases post duties in 1944 over 1933.

"All roads lead to Pittsburgh" might well be a heading for the news of the week just past, for not only has many of the travelers of the last few weeks returned, but several former Pittsburghers have been visiting here. Miss Robert Goldfarb, son of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Goldfarb, now of New York, is one of the former residents who has been in the city this week, and Mr. Malcolm Wannamaker is another. Mr. National Spaulding is here, who spent several weeks at his former home on Northumberland Avenue, returned last Saturday to New York.

Among the jewellers who returned this week, are listed a large group who enjoyed a cruise on the S.S. Lackawanna. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pick of Bloomfield, Cleveland, exhibit in.

Crowning Simple Takes of Two New Members Last One Read

Up until this year, the one-every-six months picnic was a $6.00 pot lunch fund. If your partner opened the bidding with 10,000, you responded with 1,000. You would have to keep the bidding going until one round unless your opening bid was hoodoo bid.

In the requirements for opening one hold you have been stepped up, there is no such thing as a “hoodoo bid.” So you must make a response to a one-ever-six.

The requirements for a one-every-six month are the same. If you opened 1,000, the following changes have been made for simple quotas of two, which is the only quota that is allowed: 1,000-Hourtricks for a major unit; 2,000-Hourtricks for a major unit; 3,000-Hourtricks for a major unit.

The fact that the one-over-one and the one-over-six are for one round does not eliminate the tricking of in/out. A bidding a takeout should still be held high by Hourtricks, except with weak distribution.

After Felix’s disposition of the above principles to Mr. and Mrs. Glick last Tuesday night, he opened a new deck of cards four times, and dealt the following hands:

In the lead was Kilmartine, and the lead was played low, and Felix played the Ace of diamonds as a safety play against the possible singleton queen on his left. Another spade lead put the 10 in the lead again.

The finest in diamonds was not necessary, for Pats was forced to play her Queen on the second diamond lead. Four diamond tricks, one heart trick, the club trick, and three spade tricks, were won by the declarer, and the three no-trump contract was made.

PHIL WEINTRAUB TIES AGAIN

Phil Weintraub, the slugging young man from Chicago who thinks more of the diamond than he does of the butcher business, is once again back on the New York Giants’ Minor training camp. Phil is the same lad who tried to land a fielding spot with a former world’s champion,-failed, and was sent back to the grapefruit circuits for seasoning. Last August, Bill Terry recalled Weintraub from Nashville, and parked him in the outfield of the Polo Grounds. He went with the Terrys to Brooklyn, and now is once again trying to land apermanent part with the big time ball club.

A ROOKIE WHO MIGHT BE TOO OLD

The Jewish ball player from the Windy City is fighting off the bugbear of old age. Although he is only twenty-six, his age might prove a barrier to a rookie who is trying to climb the major leagues. Harry Marvin, Babe Ruth, Adolph Luque and others are still in the big kings’ playing field, despite the fact that they’re each over forty. Three back players received their seasoning in their teens. Each reached the big leagues in his early twenties. Weintraub is fighting to make good in his twenty-seventh year. May find himself hard pressed by youngsters like Hank Lieber, Walt Witt, for that matter, rookie just as green as he. Footballers are younger, are sure in handling the ball and who hold with more fire.

STARTED PLAYING IN 1938

The battery of Weintraub results in the breaking of the Wonderland Jug. The big fellow, who stands six feet one and three-quarters in weight, is a neighborhood of 110 pounds, started playing ball for the Rock Island Club back in 1938. He started his professional baseball career as a plodder, and in the eight years that it took him to travel from Evanston to Nashville he played first base, second base, and failed for two seasons in every league at his position. When he hit well over .300 each season in last year, began to interest the Giants. He had run a batting average of .447 last season. Rock Island, Weirton, West Mifflin, Zephyr City, Daytona, Lafayette, Indianapolis, Nashville, and others. Except for Nashville, these big clubs were his stops until he arrived in the Giants’ giants a year ago.

Following his early debut with the Rock Island Cub, as a left handed pitcher, Weintraub, realizing that he wasn’t getting any place in the Central League, ball parks, gave up baseball and went back to his wholesale meat business. But he told us last summer that he was thinking of dropping the baseball and trying his hand at an out. Once the bug gets you there’s nothing giving up the game. That’s why I stayed out of baseball for a year, 1939

In Which We Burn Inane To The Memory Of J. S. Bach—By Musrcus

Few are the men of genius whose works do not live on for time and the onward march of things. Fewer, indeed, are the mighty men of the musical domain whose personal service subsists indefinitely in the products of their Talent! Of the immortal circle of these very few is Johann Sebastian Bach, the quarte-beloved of whose national soul surpasses all others. Like the ever-flushing cup of beauty which abounds with the emblems of the fabled isle of her name, and the pleasing little picture of the great poet, so the humble monitor of the Church has been impressed, as it were, upon the beauteous landscape with forming intimations and dignities.

SACH, COLUMBUS

What better testimony to his tremendous endurance than the fact that today, 289 years after his birth, despite all the so-called modernity and ultra-modernity which have impressed all art with vitiating tenets, Real's compositions, whether for oratorio or choruses, were incipient or apocryphal, were respected, admired and revered by musicians and artists,吧 suspected of any importance, if any, either of the other or society may ascribe to pained musical thought or to the resultant

Rabbi Ashinsky Fete Postponed To April 2

The greater jubilee celebrations for the 200th anniversary of the birth of Rabbi Ashinsky, who will have been born on March 19 last, was postposed due to the death of Rabbi Ashinsky's father. Before he was held Tuesday evening, April 8, in the Y.M. and H.A., 76 N. Lichtenstein, chairman of the Jubilee committee, said.

Lichtenstein revealed that no preliminary notices and telegrams have been dispatched because of the estate of Tzvi Yehoshua on the cleaning of the work of his father in the Y.M. and H.A. community, but that another committee has been appointed to determine the final arrangements.

Jewish Daily Forward
Purim To Be Marked Monday and Tuesday

Syngogues and other Jewish organizations will celebrate Purim on Monday, March 11, and Tuesday, March 13. The Hebrew Gate of Purim is the 14th day of Adar.

The chief feature of the day is the carnival, when Public Enemy No. 1 of the Jews some 2,500 years ago—will be the subject of fun and games. In orthodox synagogues at the Monday evening services.

The “Megilloh” (the Biblically inspired story of Queen Esther) will be read from the scrolls, and the manor in which they saved the Jews of Peres from a terrible fate at the hands of Haman. It was the aim and desire of this wicked scheme who had dreamed to a position of power at the court of Peres to destroy the Jewish people completely—to obliterate them so that no trace might remain.

Rabbi, resource for his charm and beauty, was chosen to replace the invisible Vashni in the eyes of the King. When Mordecai informed her of the plot against her people, she fasted for three days and nights, and spent her time in prayer. Then she secured an audience with the monarch, despite the fact that according to the laws of the Persians and Medes, the queen might not appear before the king except when summoned by him. Queen Esther decided to confront the wicked Haman’s plans, with the result that the Jews were saved, and Haman and his followers slain.

In the days of theTorah, the Jewish nation offers to The Man for their salvation, the seventh day of Adar in each year is a day of fasting—known as the Fast of Esther. The day preceding the fast is the day of rejoicing and merrymaking—known as Purim (Feast of Lots) —because Haman had been told to determine when would be the most favorable time to destroy the Jews, and the seventh day of Adar was the date chosen.
